College/university:

B.A. in Psychology, Wake Forest University

Prior experience

I first started at Adelphi as a project intern in summer of 2022, right before my senior year of college at Wake Forest University. I was head of my honors thesis lab and had both a psychology and bioethics background, but I was new to the professional world.

My academic interests made me a good candidate for market research, but I had a lot to learn. During that summer, I was treated as a valued member of my project teams and felt that people on all levels were invested in my success, even after being at the company for just a few months. As a young professional, I valued getting to work with company leadership.

After graduating, I was excited about the opportunity of coming back to Adelphi full time. I knew I would be able to learn, grow, get out of my comfort zone, and thrive as a fresh graduate in the environment Adelphi provides, surrounded by the people Adelphi attracts.

That is the reason you choose, and stay at, Adelphi: the people. You'll hear everyone say it, but it's true; we really are the best people, and we make coming to work something to look forward to.

They push you to do your best work and improve, but never without support behind you. Moreover, we get the chance to work on meaningful, fast-paced projects that have a tangible, lasting effect on the pharmaceutical industry.

Since being at Adelphi, I have learned by both watching and doing. I get to work with people one level above me, all the way up to Vice Presidents, all of whom teach me something every day. I know that no matter where my career takes me, I will have built a strong foundation at Adelphi thanks to my teammates.
